

Update on Roadblocks: July 24, 2009

Posted: July 24, 2009

The U.S. Embassy alerts American Citizens to announcements of a road blockage of Carretera Central at the intersection with La Provincial de Yauli-La Oroya. Travel to the Huancayo area may be affected by this blockage which is expected to be in place by early Sunday morning, July 26. This will be the third time that this has been done recently. Protestors block roads with large rocks, making it nearly impossible and dangerous to proceed. The Embassy strongly urges travelers to stay alert to potential violence and to depart any situation immediately if it appears to be turning dangerous. The possibility of violent protests and road blockages may disrupt travel plans and delay roads and air connections to other cities. Travelers should consult with hotel staff and tour guides before attempting to utilize public transportation: buses, combis and taxis.

Americans living or traveling in Peru are encouraged to register with the U.S. Embassy through the State Department's travel registration web site so that they can obtain updated information on travel and security within Peru. Americans without Internet access may register directly with the U.S. Embassy or Consular Agent. By registering, American citizens make it easier for the Embassy or Consulate to contact them in case of emergency.
